

MODERN LITERATURE AND CRITICAL THEORY (COMMA)

SPECIALIZATION

This specialization is for students interested in reading Modern and post-modernist British, Irish, and world literature alongside cultural theory. COMMA emphasizes the coexistence of literature with modern and contemporary cultural productions. Courses in this specialization focus on Twentieth Century Anglophone literature and contextualize this by discussing such topics as critical theory, feminism, or postcolonial theory, as just a few examples.

Students who complete any four (4) upper division elective courses devoted to twentieth century Anglophone literature and culture will satisfy the specialization requirement – (note one lower division elective is allowed)

Please note that English 104B, if used to satisfy the English 104A/B requirement for the English major, will not count towards the specialization - although it is still recommended.

A senior seminar, English 197, with COMMA-related material is advisable but not mandatory.

English Department courses that qualify as COMMA Specialization electives:

- English 36. Global Humanities
- English 65AA-ZZ: Topics in Literature (when taught by a COMMA-affiliated instructor)
- English 104B:* British Literature 1900-Present (recommended, but does not count towards specialization if applied towards the English 104A/B major requirement)
